VIBRANT PITTSBURGH AND URBAN AFFAIRS FOUNDATION

AWARD $50,000 IN GRANTS

Sixteen grant projects aim to strengthen Pittsburgh through collaboration and diversity

PITTSBURGH – March 20, 2015 – Vibrant Pittsburgh and the Urban Affairs Foundation of the Community Relations Council of the Jewish Federation of Greater Pittsburgh announced the recipients of this year's Civic Inclusion & Engagement Fund grants. The fund is a joint venture of the two groups, which seek to strengthen the Pittsburgh region by supporting and engaging its diverse communities.

For the second consecutive year, each organization committed $25,000 to create the $50,000 Civic Inclusion & Engagement Fund. Eligible applicants were affinity groups, nonprofit organizations and employer resource groups. Eligible projects had to create opportunities for civic engagement — which included improving knowledge, skills and motivation — and be collaborative.

Eight community leaders, nominated by Vibrant Pittsburgh and the Federation, allocated the $50,000 to 16 projects. Each project involves organizations that represent or benefit a diverse, underserved or minority population.

Among the region's populations reflected or served by the 16 projects are African Americans, Latinos, Asian Americans, LGBTQ communities, people with disabilities, refugees, the people of North Braddock and residents of the upper Ohio Valley.

"The diversity represented by project partners is as broad and interesting as the diversity of populations within the Pittsburgh region," said Melanie Harrington, CEO of Vibrant Pittsburgh. "The list of organizations involved in Civic Inclusion & Engagement Fund projects was incredibly eclectic. The potential for synergy that results from bringing these groups together is fantastic and ultimately critical to the long-term competitiveness of our region."

Individual grant awards ranged from $900 to $5,900.

“We call the awards mini-grants,” said Skip Grinberg, chair of the Community Relations Council. “They aren’t large, but they can be the spark that allows people to collaborate and share strengths. Every community has strengths. By using them, the community benefits itself and the region.”

In 2015, Civic Inclusion & Engagement Fund mini-grants will fund these projects:

- Listening for a Change, whose goal is to solicit the input of students at Pittsburgh Millions 6–12, a university preparatory school in the Hill District, about preparing homogenous communities for diverse global interaction. A partnership of Amizade Global Service-Learning, Global Solutions Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh Millions 6–12, Hill District Education Council.
- Greater Pittsburgh Coalition Against Violence — Youth Summits, which will give youth in Pittsburgh Public Schools the chance to create solutions to neighborhood violence and communicate their solutions to peers. A partnership of Black Political Empowerment Project, Pittsburgh Public Schools, Voices Against Violence, Ceasefire PA, Black Women for Positive Change, Teen Bloc Youth (A+ Schools), Black Male Leadership Institute, We Promise, As One Youth (Harvard Fellows Project).
- Navigating Pittsburgh/Navegando Pittsburgh Summit, a bilingual event that will offer newcomers and others information about participating in, contributing to and succeeding in the Pittsburgh region. A partnership of Casa San José, Latin American Cultural Union, YWCA, Café Con Leche, Carlow University, PNC Bank, La Rumba Production, Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, Global Pittsburgh, Greater Pittsburgh Literacy Council, Allegheny County DHS Immigrants and Internationals Initiative.
- Pittsburgh Chinese Cultural Festival, an event to build awareness and appreciation of Pittsburgh’s Chinese community. A partnership of the Chinese Association for Science and Technology, Pittsburgh Chapter; Pittsburgh Chinese Restaurant Association; Pittsburgh Chinese School; Pittsburgh Academy of Chinese Culture and Language; Chinese Students & Scholars Association, University of Pittsburgh; Chinese Students & Scholars Association, Carnegie Mellon University; Yanlai Dance Academy; Win-Win Kung Fu Culture Center; University Center for International Studies, Confucius Center, University of Pittsburgh; Greater Pittsburgh Sichuan-Chongqing Association.
- UAC 2015 Organizational Events, which will allow new-immigrant communities, especially immigrants from Africa, to share culture and learn about health literacy, leadership, entrepreneurship, home ownership and other topics as they interact with the larger Pittsburgh population. A partnership of Christian Evangelic Economic Development and Union of African Communities.
